Practically a Daily at the Price of a Weekly. No other Newspaper in the world gives so much at so low a price.

The year 1914 has been the most extraordinary in the history of modern times. It has witnessed the outbreak of the great European war, a struggle so titanic that it makes all others look small.

You live in momentous times, and you should not miss any of the tremendous events that are occurring. No other newspaper will inform you with the promptness and cheapness of the Thrice-a-Week edition of the New York World. Moreover, a year's subscription to it will take you far into our next Presidential campaign.

THE THRICE-A-WEEK WORLD'S regular subscription price is only $1.00 per year, and this pays for 156 papers. We offer this unequalled newspaper and Hopkinsville Kentuckian together for one year for $2.65.

The regular subscription price of the two papers is $3.00.

FARM ANIMALS

FEW FUNCTIONS OF TANKAGE

Connects Successive Generations of Pigs So Vitrally That One May Become Food for Next.

(By G. R. SANSON, Oregon Experiment Station.)

Tankage connects the successive generations of pigs so vitally that one generation may become food for the next. When hogs are slaughtered their blood and refuse that were formerly wasted are made into tankage and used to fatten the next crop of pigs for the market. While not a great deal of this material enters into the new lot of pigs the most expensive parts of their carcasses are made up by it.

Tankage is a by-product of the meat industry that is admirably suited to hog feeding, and is likely to remain the cheapest source of protein for swine. The supply is increasing as slaughter methods become more concentrated and efficient.

At present, large quantities of materials from which tankage is made are wasted by the small slaughtering establishments. The use of a system that provides for saving this material and turning it into a valuable commercial product instead of into a public menace to health will increase the supply and assure its availability throughout the entire year.

Swine are likely to remain the principal consumers of this product because it is neither so palatable nor digestible to cud-chewing animals. Being a product of the meat industry, tankage has a more direct relation to the swine production than has any other protein feed supply. It carries twice as much protein as linseed and soy bean meal, nearly seven times as much as barley or corn, and costs only about one-third more. It may also be fed an indefinite time without injurious results.

wire 1½ inches apart, the width between wire gradually increasing to 5 inches at top. The vertical stays are 6 inches apart. The wires are fastened to posts set 25 feet apart, the bottom wire being 3 inches from the ground. One barbed wire is set midway between the bottom horizontal wire and the ground. One barbed wire is fastened to the posts 3 inches higher than the top wire. Two barbed wires are attached 8 inches apart to pieces of 2 by 6 scantling nailed to the posts above the wire with 20-penny nails. These pieces are set outward and upward with the posts.

Pigs as Virus Carriers.
Observations made by German specialists have shown that hogs which have recovered from an attack of hog cholera, but which are otherwise in an unsatisfactory condition, are often found to be virus carriers. The urine of young pigs is especially dangerous and is often the chief cause of the spread of the disease. The secretion from the eyes and nose is dangerous, for this may be inhaled or may come in contact with the mucous membrane of healthy animals, thus causing the disease.

Community Breeding.
Community breeding is valuable in two ways, viz., it aids in getting a fine pure-bred sire, much better than the ordinary breeder could afford to get. Next is advertising, for where there are several herds of the same breed it will be more widely known and a buyer would have many more to select from. If one cannot please him perhaps a neighbor can.

A Good Breeder.
No breeder, however wise he may be, can succeed unless he is a good feeder and a good manager. When we talk of overfeeding our brood sows we are mistaken or ignorant of what we say. Throughout the farming districts, one finds more underfed than overfed hogs, more poor managers than successful caretakers.

Keep Track of Sheep.
If a single day passes when you do not see all the sheep, you may get up some morning and find them dead or helpless. Count them every day. Go out the last thing at night and see if they are all right.
